

A Bachelor's in Information Technology/Business Systems Analysis will instruct you in the disciplines involving the implementation and usage of information technology.

You will learn the design and function of computers, networks, databases, and more. Technological skills such as programming, systems analysis, network administration, and database design are also given attention. Your studies will also include the maintenance, repair, and updating of these systems to keep up with continuous improvements of modern technology. Security and ethical issues regarding the safety and privacy of data are examined as well. Strong problem-solving and communication skills will be developed through case studies and hands-on experience. This major will afford you a thorough understanding of information technology and how it is most effectively and efficiently implemented in the modern business world. You will possess the technical knowledge and communication skills necessary to analyze this technology and present the information it contains to others in a clear and concise manner. This major will prepare you for: A major in the field qualifies you for a number of jobs involving modern technology. The modern business world is becoming more and more dependent upon such technology to function at a high level. Job/career opportunities in this area include: computer programming, data analysis, project management, computer support specialist, and database administration. Further education at the master's or Ph.D. level in any of these or other information technology areas or other business disciplines such as marketing or administration allow for upper management position jobs in the business world.