

A bachelor's degree program is an undergraduate program that usually takes four years to complete. Enrolling in a bachelor's degree program requires that students choose a major area of study, such as finance, history, communications or biology.

Bachelor's degree programs in film and cinema teach students about the genres and forms of motion pictures and the duties associated with creating movies and films. Keep reading to explore the program requirements, coursework, career options and further studies available to graduates.

Schools That Offer Associate in Accounting

South College uses the learning management system Moodle to support the delivery of hybrid and online learning programs and courses. Online learning classes are driven by student learning outcomes and designed using sound pedagogical principles in online teaching, learning and assessment.